Tourism industry: improvement of safety, consumers' rights and trading standards

The Committee adopted the own-initiative report by Pedro APARICIO SANCHEZ (PES, E) on improving safety, consumer's rights and trading standards in the tourism sector. The current Community legislation in this area shows no overall approach and therefore the rapporteur called on the Commission to come forward with a wide range of measures to protect the tourist physically, legally and economically. In his report, Mr APARICIO SANCHEZ emphasized the need for community action and legislation, in particular: - to protect the tourist in the phase preceding the trip (advertising and sale of tourism services and travel contracts); -to protect the tourist in the performance phase of the contract. He also supported a better access to justice, with the possibility of introducing Community arbitration channels of a non-judicial nature for some types of dispute. ?

Tourism industry: improvement of safety, consumers' rights and trading standards

In adopting the report by Mr Pedro APARICIO SANCHEZ (PSE, E) Parliament regretted that the Commission did not have an action programme for tourism (as an economic, cultural and social activity and concerning protection of the tourist). In general terms, Parliament considered it essential to create a framework for Community measures to protect safety in tourist accommodation and that Community measures to protect safety in air, sea and coach transport were complied with and were monitored. With regard to air transport, Parliament called on the Commission to take steps to improve information to travellers concerning fares, ticket details, permitted baggage weight, overbooking and the level of compensation paid in individual cases. It also called for revision of the system for allocating slots at Community airports so that charter or tourist flights were not always affected by unfavourable scheduling. Parliament called on the Commission to submit a proposal concerning terminology, classification and quality criteria for tourist accommodation and travel agencies. It called for consideration of the setting up of a guarantee fund for cases of airline bankruptcies and for travel agency bankruptcies. Such a fund should have sufficient resources to limit non-professional bodies. Parliament also called for: - better information for consumers on clauses relating to cancellation of bookings, holidays and the relevant insurance contracts; - publication by the Commission of a compilation of Community measures on protection of tourists and their rights and duties; - particular attention to be paid by the Commission to the specific problems encountered by children, senior citizens and persons with disabilities (the presence of a doctor at major tourist accommodation centres and rapid access to medical services in case of emergency should be guaranteed); - the creation of a European network of information and assistance offices (including legal advice); - measures to ensure that EU nationals who are either victims of a crime or accused of committing one have immediate and constant access to interpretation and translation at no cost to themselves; - harmonization at European level of the amount of compensation payable to EU citizens who are victims of crime where physical harm has been inflicted; - establishment of a programme of Community financing to guarantee assistance to tourists in major centres. ?
