Fight against drugs: Post-1999 Union's strategy. Report, European Council of Cardiff 1998

OBJECTIVE: this Council report summarises drugs-related activities under the UK Presidency and makes proposals on the key elements of a post-1999 EU drugs strategy. CONTENT: action against drugs was a priority for the UK Presidency (January-June 1998). Particular attention in this area was given to: - elaboration of the key elements of a post-1999 EU drugs strategy and priorities for 1998/1999; - coordination of the EU input to the preparations for the United Nations General Assembly Special Session on Drugs; - further implementation of regional initiatives in Latin America, the Caribbean and Central Asia. Other actions were carried out within the framework of the CFSP and with a view to strengthening customs cooperation. The Council report also explains future activities in this area: 1) Priorities 1998-1999: beyond strengthening cooperation between the competent national authorities in the fight against drugs, the report indicates that the main priorities in this area include: - institutional reinforcement of the EMCCDA (European Monitoring Centre on Drugs and Drug Addiction); - improvement of information exchanges relating to synthetic drugs; - effective implementation of all Community programmes related to drugs; - speedy ratification of the EUROPOL Customs Information System (CIS) and Naples II Conventions; - continuing rapid implementation of the recommendations of the High Level Group on Organised Crime; - enhancing controls on precursors; - studying the positive and negative impacts of the Internet on drug misuse and the effects of illicit drugs on driving. 2) Priorities 2000-2004: beyond continuing pursuit of the aforementioned priorities and assessment of their impact, priorities post-1999 include: - ensuring a balanced approach between demand reduction and supply reduction; - in keeping with the principle of subsidiarity, ensuring the approximation of Member States' drug laws and practices; - promoting the medical and socio-economic aspects of drug abuse (RDT); - emphasising the relationship between drug abuse and social disadvantage (poverty, unemployment, crime, exclusion etc.); - recognising the importance of a multi-sectoral and multi-disciplinary approach; - intensifying cooperation and ensuring an effective exchange of knowledge, information and experiences between Member States on demand reduction (including working exchanges); - taking full account of the opportunities offered by the Treaty of Amsterdam in the field of public health and drugs and of the incorporation of the acquis from the Schengen Convention. Priorities are also set out at an international level, notably in relation to the candidate countries and the countries of the ALA and MED zones.?

PURPOSE: annual report by the European Monitoring Centre for Drugs and Drug Addiction (EMCDDA) on the state of the drugs problem in the European Union. CONTENT: the report presents key emerging trends in drug use and the resulting problems in the EU as well as an overview of the drug situation (cannabis, amphetamines, ecstasy, synthetic drugs, cocaine, heroine, medicines), accompanied by a summary of key epidemiological indicators that permit comparisons in the areas of prevalence, consequences, characteristics and patterns of demand and supply (general population surveys, demand for treatment, deaths linked to drug use, police arrests, drug use in prison, the drug market). The report notes that the trend to multiple drug use, including alcohol and diverted medicines, as well as the increasing profile of amphetamines, requires rapid and sensitive assessment and service planning that is flexible and responsive. Furthermore, the focus needs to be extended to incorporate the interpersonal, cultural and demographic substrata of both experimentation and problem substance use. Finally, the quality of data must be improved so that interventions can be more expeditiously targeted and more sensitively evaluated. The report also examines other aspects, such as: - drug demand reduction (prevention, early intervention and at-risk groups, prevention of infectious diseases, substitution and treatment programmes, criminal justice policy, specific target groups...); - the nature and extent of drug use in Central and Eastern Europe; - national strategies (legislative measures, particularly with regard to the use of cannabis); - actions taken by the European Union (eg. Community action programme on the prevention of drug dependence, early warning system on new synthetic drugs...) - international action; - analysis of public spending on drugs. Although the EMCDDA is aware of the restrictions which exist in terms of resources, progressive improvement in collection and diffusion of information (by means of a variety of methods) remains crucial in order to achieve the objective of improved communication and cooperation.?

Fight against drugs: Post-1999 Union's strategy. Report, European Council of Cardiff 1998

The Committee adopted, with Amendment 9, a draft report from the Council to the European Council on activities on drugs and drugs-related issues. The rapporteur was Hedy d'Ancona (PES, NL). The vote was 252 in favour and 188 against. Amendment 2 was rejected by 375 votes to 72. The aim of the report was to support the development of new and improved strategies as well as alternative policies, so that the EU can continue to respond flexibly and practically to developments in drug trafficking and consumption, in particular through greater cooperation among all the main organisations in the world involved in the fight against drugs. The rapporteur also recommended that the Commission and Council join forces in order to draw up a single document. This would give a clearer idea of European policy on drugs, in which a Commissioner should play a coordinating role and take responsibility for the issue.

Adopting the report by Hedy d'Ancona (PSE,NL) on the post-1999 EU drugs strategy, the European Parliament recommends to the Council that all initiatives relating to drugs be coordinated by one Commissioner. It calls for better use to be made of the work undertaken by the European Monitoring Centre for Drugs and Drug Addiction (EMCDDA) and for the facilitation of significant participation by the applicant countries in its activities. More generally, the Parliament wishes to be more closely involved with projects and decisions in this area. It concurs with the proposal to encourage more effective cooperation between the police, customs and law enforcement bodies so that assets gained through crime can be confiscated. It urges that funds thus gathered should be used for programmes and projects associated with drug abuse. Noting that the Council pays hardly any attention to prevention and information as instruments for demand reduction for drugs, the Parliament recommends that, in collaboration with the EMCDDA, the Member States plan actions in these areas and that a specific strategy be drawn up to this end. Finally, it wishes to see good use of EU funds for North-South cooperation for action against drugs, so as to assess whether the stated aims are actually being achieved.?
