

Procedure file

Basic information
INI - Own-initiative procedure	2010/2054(INI)	Procedure completed
Role of women in agriculture and rural areas
Subject
3.10.01 Agricultural structures and holdings, farmers
4.10.09 Women condition and rights

Key players
European Parliament	Committee responsible	Rapporteur	Appointed
	AGRI Agriculture and Rural Development		23/02/2010
		PPE JEGGLE Elisabeth
	Committee for opinion	Rapporteur for opinion	Appointed
	FEMM Women's Rights and Gender Equality	The committee decided not to give an opinion.
European Commission	Commission DG	Commissioner
	Agriculture and Rural Development	CIOLOȘ Dacian

Key events
21/04/2010	Committee referral announced in Parliament
26/01/2011	Vote in committee		Summary
31/01/2011	Committee report tabled for plenary	A7-0016/2011
04/04/2011	Debate in Parliament
05/04/2011	Results of vote in Parliament
05/04/2011	Decision by Parliament	T7-0122/2011	Summary
05/04/2011	End of procedure in Parliament

Technical information
Procedure reference	2010/2054(INI)
Procedure type	INI - Own-initiative procedure
Procedure subtype	Initiative
Legal basis	Rules of Procedure EP 54
Other legal basis	Rules of Procedure EP 159

Stage reached in procedure	Procedure completed
Committee dossier	AGRI/7/02382

Documentation gateway

Committee draft report	PE441.174	08/10/2010	EP
Amendments tabled in committee	PE452.683	17/11/2010	EP
Committee report tabled for plenary, single reading	A7-0016/2011	31/01/2011	EP
Text adopted by Parliament, single reading	T7-0122/2011	05/04/2011	EP	Summary
Commission response to text adopted in plenary	SP(2011)5857	19/09/2011	EC

Role of women in agriculture and rural areas

The Committee on Agriculture and Rural Development adopted the report by Elisabeth JEGGLE (EPP, DE) on the role of women in agriculture and rural areas.

Members recall that about 42% of the 26.7 million people working regularly in agriculture in the European Union are women and at least one holding in five (around 29%) is managed by a woman. They also emphasise that for both men and women, employment rates are low in rural areas and indeed many women are never active in the labour market, so that they are neither registered as unemployed nor included in unemployment statistics, which disadvantages them.

To address the specific needs of women working in agriculture, Members propose a series of recommendations which take account both of their living conditions and their role and contribution to the development of the rural economy.

Living and doing business in the rural world: Members point out that efforts are needed to create living conditions in rural areas which correspond to those in urban areas while reflecting the realities of the countryside, in order to offer women and their families reasons for staying and making a successful life there. The rural world needs to be promoted as a multifaceted, integrated setting in which people can work and do business, and for the key function of women, their expertise and their competence to be used to this end. Members therefore call on the Commission, in the negotiations on the next multiannual financial framework, to refrain from further reducing the proportion of the total budget accounted for by agricultural expenditure.

Members call for several measures to promote rural living conditions for women:

- the promotion of local services via the common agricultural policy in order to open up new prospects and paid employment opportunities for women and significantly facilitate the reconciliation of family life and work;
- the promotion of development strategies that have their own momentum, as a means of supporting the particular creativity of men and women in the countryside,
- framework conditions to be provided in rural areas that will enable women of all generations to remain in their own immediate environment and contribute to revival and development there;
- the importance of early retirement arrangements for farmers and farm workers with regard to living conditions for women in rural areas;
- further efforts to be made to equip all rural areas with the most
- up-to-date IT infrastructure, above all adequate broadband access, to stimulate competitiveness and improve e-business in rural regions;
- improve the quality and accessibility of infrastructure, facilities and services for everyday life in rural areas such as childcare facilities, healthcare services, educational facilities (including for lifelong learning), institutions and care for the elderly and other dependants;
- use the Structural Funds and the Cohesion Fund to remedy the lack of good transport infrastructure in rural areas;
- support for projects promoting and advising on the creation of innovative primary agricultural production enterprises in rural areas that are able to provide new jobs for women in innovative sectors, research and development, etc.);
- the new EAFRD Regulation to provide for specific measures to support women in the 2014-2020 programming period which would have a beneficial impact on female employment in rural areas.

Women in the rural economy: Members call on the Commission and the Member States to contribute to an informative database on the economic and social situation of women and their involvement in business in rural regions. They also consider it desirable to work towards the creation of a European rural women's network (or a network of women's associations) and to promote their training. Other measures are called for including support for the increased involvement of women in the political processes, including their proper representation on the boards of institutions, companies and associations.

As regards the issue of spouses and life partners of farmers, Members call for the rapid transposition of Directive 2010/41/EU on the application of the principle of equal treatment between men and women engaged in an activity in a self-employed capacity, to ensure that they receive social protection and that self-employed women farmers and female spouses of farmers are guaranteed adequate maternity benefits.

Underlining the role of women in the diversification of the rural economy, Members call for women's entrepreneurial spirit and initiatives to be encouraged, in particular through the promotion of female ownership, networks of female entrepreneurs, and provision in the financial sector for facilitating access for rural businesswomen.

Women in agriculture: Members call for greater account to be taken, in company-level and regional-level development strategies, of women's agricultural and non-agricultural vocational skills. To encourage the continuing training of women, Members call for initiatives for additional training in rural areas, under Axis 3 of the rural development programmes. This would help to combat social exclusion in rural areas and the risk of poverty.

Among the measures to promote the role of women in agriculture, Members suggest:

- support for women's and farmers' organisations;
- support for better representation of women in political, economic and social organisations in the agricultural sector;
- support for social protection strategies for women in agriculture (women-farmers, -rural workers, -seasonal workers, etc.);
- support for specific measures to take account of living and working conditions of migrant workers employed as seasonal workers (lodging, social protection, health insurance and health care).

Members also consider that, as part of the forthcoming reform of the CAP, the needs of women in rural areas and the role of women working in agriculture should be taken into account and given priority as regards access to certain services and aid, in line with territorial needs in each Member State. In this regard, they call on the Commission to include in its summary report to be presented in 2011 in accordance with Council Regulation \(EC\) No 1698/2005 on the EAFRD an in-depth analysis of the impact of the measures taken regarding the situation of women in rural areas.

Role of women in agriculture and rural areas

The European Parliament adopted a resolution on the role of women in agriculture and rural areas.

It recalls that about 42% of the 26.7 million people working regularly in agriculture in the European Union are women and at least one holding in five (around 29%) is managed by a woman. It also emphasises that for both men and women, employment rates are low in rural areas.

To address the specific needs of women working in agriculture, Parliament proposes a series of recommendations which take account both of their living conditions and their role and contribution to the development of the rural economy.

Living and doing business in the rural world: Parliament points out that efforts are needed to create living conditions in rural areas which correspond to those in urban areas while reflecting the realities of the countryside, in order to offer women and their families reasons for staying and making a successful life there. The rural world needs to be promoted as a multifaceted, integrated setting in which people can work and do business, and for the key function of women, their expertise and their competence to be used to this end. It therefore calls on the Commission, in the negotiations on the next multiannual financial framework, to refrain from further reducing the proportion of the total budget accounted for by agricultural expenditure.

Parliament calls for several measures to promote rural living conditions for women:

- the promotion of local services via the common agricultural policy in order to open up new prospects and paid employment opportunities for women and significantly facilitate the reconciliation of family life and work;
- the promotion of development strategies that have their own momentum, as a means of supporting the particular creativity of men and women in the countryside;
- framework conditions to be provided in rural areas that will enable women of all generations to remain in their own immediate environment and contribute to revival and development there;
- the importance of early retirement arrangements for farmers and farm workers with regard to living conditions for women in rural areas;
- further efforts to be made to equip all rural areas with the most
- up-to-date IT infrastructure, above all adequate broadband access, to stimulate competitiveness and improve e-business in rural regions;
- improve the quality and accessibility of infrastructure, facilities and services for everyday life in rural areas such as childcare facilities, healthcare services, educational facilities (including for lifelong learning), institutions and care for the elderly and other dependants;
- use the Structural Funds and the Cohesion Fund to remedy the lack of good transport infrastructure in rural areas;
- strengthen rural development strategies by placing particular emphasis on the contribution of women to the achievement of the objectives of the Europe 2020 strategy;
- support for projects promoting and advising on the creation of innovative primary agricultural production enterprises in rural areas that are able to provide new jobs for women in innovative sectors, research and development, etc.);
- the new EAFRD Regulation to provide for specific measures to support women in the 2014-2020 programming period which would have a beneficial impact on female employment in rural areas.

Women in the rural economy: Parliament calls on the Commission and the Member States to contribute to an informative database on the economic and social situation of women and their involvement in business in rural regions. It also considers it desirable to work towards the creation of a European rural women's network (or a network of women's associations) and to promote their training. Other measures are called for including support for the increased involvement of women in the political processes, including their proper representation on the boards of institutions, companies and associations.

As regards the issue of spouses and life partners of farmers, Parliament calls for the rapid transposition of Directive 2010/41/EU on the application of the principle of equal treatment between men and women engaged in an activity in a self-employed capacity, to ensure that they receive social protection and that self-employed women farmers and female spouses of farmers are guaranteed adequate maternity benefits.

Underlining the role of women in the diversification of the rural economy, Parliament calls for women's entrepreneurial spirit and initiatives to be encouraged, in particular through the promotion of female ownership, networks of female entrepreneurs, and provision in the financial sector for facilitating access for rural businesswomen.

Women in agriculture: Parliament calls for greater account to be taken, in company-level and regional-level development strategies, of women's agricultural and non-agricultural vocational skills. To encourage the continuing training of women, it calls for initiatives for additional training in rural areas, under Axis 3 of the rural development programmes. This would help to combat social exclusion in rural areas and the risk of poverty.

Among the measures to promote the role of women in agriculture, Parliament suggests:

- support for women's and farmers' organisations;
- support for better representation of women in political , economic and social organisations in the agricultural sector;
- support for social protection strategies for women in agriculture (women-farmers, -rural workers, -seasonal workers, etc.);
- support for specific measures to take account of living and working conditions of migrant workers employed as seasonal workers (lodging, social protection, health insurance and health care).

Parliament also considers that, as part of the forthcoming reform of the CAP, the needs of women in rural areas and the role of women working in agriculture should be taken into account and given priority as regards access to certain services and aid, in line with territorial needs in each Member State. It invites the Commission and the Member States to facilitate improved access for women to land and to credit, in order to encourage their establishment in rural areas and as actors in the agricultural sector. In addition, it would like the tax situation of women to be taken into account, including in relation to property rights and that these issues should be made available for the development of appropriate social protection of women in agriculture in the Member States

In this regard, it calls on the Commission to include in its summary report to be presented in 2011 in accordance with Council Regulation \(EC\) No 1698/2005 on the EAFRD an in-depth analysis of the impact of the measures taken regarding the situation of women in rural areas.