

Procedure file

Basic information
INI - Own-initiative procedure	2013/2045(INI)	Procedure completed
Tackling youth unemployment: possible ways out
Subject 4.15 Employment policy, action to combat unemployment 4.40.10 Youth

Key players
European Parliament	Committee responsible EMPL Employment and Social Affairs	Rapporteur PPE SKRZYDLEWSKA Joanna Katarzyna Shadow rapporteur S&D REGNER Evelyn ALDE HIRSCH Nadja ECR MCINTYRE Anthea	Appointed 26/10/2012
	Committee for opinion REGI Regional Development	Rapporteur for opinion S&D ALVES Luís Paulo	Appointed 19/02/2013
	CULT Culture and Education		08/03/2013
	FEMM Women's Rights and Gender Equality	S&D MENÉNDEZ DEL VALLE Emilio PPE ANGELILLI Roberta	11/03/2013
European Commission	Commission DG Employment, Social Affairs and Inclusion	Commissioner ANDOR László

Key events
14/03/2013	Committee referral announced in Parliament
09/07/2013	Vote in committee
22/07/2013	Committee report tabled for plenary	A7-0275/2013	Summary
10/09/2013	Debate in Parliament
11/09/2013	Results of vote in Parliament

11/09/2013

Decision by Parliament

T7-0365/2013

Summary

11/09/2013

End of procedure in Parliament

Technical information

Procedure reference	2013/2045(INI)
Procedure type	INI - Own-initiative procedure
Procedure subtype	Initiative
Legal basis	Rules of Procedure EP 54
Other legal basis	Rules of Procedure EP 159
Stage reached in procedure	Procedure completed
Committee dossier	EMPL/7/12144

Documentation gateway

Committee draft report		PE508.047	08/04/2013	EP
Amendments tabled in committee		PE510.867	28/05/2013	EP
Committee opinion	FEMM	PE508.138	30/05/2013	EP
Committee opinion	CULT	PE510.555	20/06/2013	EP
Committee opinion	REGI	PE510.752	21/06/2013	EP
Committee report tabled for plenary, single reading		A7-0275/2013	22/07/2013	EP	Summary
Text adopted by Parliament, single reading		T7-0365/2013	11/09/2013	EP	Summary
Commission response to text adopted in plenary		SP(2013)816	19/12/2013	EC

Tackling youth unemployment: possible ways out

The Committee on Employment and Social Affairs adopted the report by Joanna Katarzyna SKRZYDLEWSKA (EPP, PL) on tackling youth unemployment: possible ways out.

Members emphasise that national and EU policy measures to boost youth employment should be coherent and mutually reinforcing. They deplore the fact that the current crisis measures aimed at reducing public spending in the crisis countries have already had a direct negative impact on young people through cuts in education, employment creation and support services. They point out that young unemployed people come from a wide variety of groups and therefore have to be classified according to their needs and abilities if the measures taken are to be implemented to more useful effect.

In this context, they invite the Commission and the Member States to take measures to:

- where there is more than 25% youth unemployment in the regions, to develop a one-year relief plan to tackle youth unemployment by creating jobs for at least 10 % of the young people affected;
- avoid wasting available resources by checking the possibility of applying examples of best practices from other Member States to their own labour markets;
- provide active support to Member States that agree to reform their vocational training systems;
- draw up qualitative guidelines for a modern dual education system, backed up by a list of broadly defined, non-academic key occupations in Europe;
- ensure the involvement of student and youth organisations in the reforms under way;
- prioritise the areas of science, technology, engineering and mathematics in their educational programmes;
- encourage and support the participation of young people and especially women, through education, civil society and quality youth initiatives, in democratic life.

Avoidance of budget cuts and significant investment in measures in favour of young people: Members are deeply concerned at the budget cuts in the Member States in the area of education, training and youth policy, which could result in young people being locked out of both education and employment. They invite the Member States and regional and local authorities to set up integrated territorial development strategies, including training and employment components, starting with measures to avoid early school leaving. Recognising the particularly difficult situation in certain regions where the level of unemployment among young people is above 25 %, Members welcome the fact that EU support for youth employment will be further boosted through the proposed EU Youth Employment Initiative, with a maximum budget of EUR 8 billion over the seven-year period 2014-2020. At the same time, they stress that, according to the ILO, EUR 21 billion would be needed to implement the Youth Guarantee effectively in the eurozone alone. The specific budget allocation for this employment initiative for young people and the corresponding allocation from the European Social Fund (ESF) should therefore be frontloaded.

Youth Guarantee: while welcoming the decision of the EPSCO Council on 28 February 2013 to agree on a Council recommendation on implementing a Youth Guarantee, they invite the Member States to take action to implement Youth Guarantee schemes in an ambitious manner at national level. They call for the extension of the target groups to include young people under the age of 30, including graduates and those leaving training systems without qualifications.

Members inform the Member States that Parliament intends to monitor closely all Member State activities to make the Youth Guarantee a reality. They also stress that efforts and funding aimed at implementing Youth Guarantee schemes should not discourage the structural efforts and reforms that are required to make the education systems and labour markets in some Member States fit for the future.

They call on the Commission to provide in its programmes for measures aimed specifically at tackling youth unemployment, following an integrated global approach.

As specifically regards the provisions to be set in place in regard to the Youth Guarantee, Members propose a series of measures designed to bring about tangible and effective results.

Plan of action on youth employment: Members call on the Commission and Member States, in cooperation with youth stakeholders and with Parliament, to develop a plan of action on youth employment identifying short-term, medium-term and long-term measures. They recommend that, in Member States with a dual vocational training system, there should be an alternative apprenticeship scheme, and thus a Youth Guarantee scheme, in the form of vocational training with more than one employer for young people under the age of 18 who cannot obtain an apprenticeship. They also encourage the fostering of a rapprochement between the worlds of work and education so that training paths such as dual training can be designed that combine theoretical notions with practical experience. They also highlight the need to reassert the value of internships in companies.

Preventing early school-leaving and discrimination in schools: Members call on the Member States to intensify their efforts to reduce early school leaving in order to achieve the goal set out in the EU 2020 strategy of a dropout rate no higher than 10 % by 2012. They invite the Member States to make use of a wide range of measures to fight early school leaving and illiteracy, e.g. reducing class sizes, providing assistance for pupils who cannot afford to complete their compulsory education, etc.

Members also call on the Member States to implement the measures set out in their national Youth Guarantee Schemes, taking into account a gender perspective at all stages of the preparation, programming and implementation of these measures. They invite the Commission and the Member States to take such measures as are necessary to counteract the stereotype that entrepreneurship is a risky and male-dominated activity.

European Youth Corps: Members call on the Commission to put forward a proposal for a European Youth Corps programme, with the aim of enabling young people under the age of 30 across Europe to do voluntary work in another Member State than their own for up to three months. The objective would be to give young people the chance to use and upgrade their educational and social skills, increase their knowledge of another Member State, and promote friendship and integration across the EU.

Align measures financed under the Structural Funds with the fight against unemployment: Members call on the Commission and the Member States, when making decisions relating to the 2014-2020 programming period, to lay down more stringent and quantifiable criteria concerning the setting, monitoring and evaluation of Structural Fund objectives, with specific targets relating to the fight against youth unemployment, which should also be measurable in terms of gender (in the period 2007-2011, 52 % of European Structural Fund beneficiaries were women). They also call for consideration to be given to a further adaptation of the ESF in order to provide additional support in the areas of young womens training, access to employment and childcare. They call on the Member States to make full and coordinated use of the available EU funding (ERDF, ESF, CF, EAFRD and EMFF), thus enabling young people to play an active part in the economy and society.

EURES: Members stress the need to introduce reforms to EURES with the aim of proactively matching jobseekers and job-changers to existing vacancies. Members call on the Member States, in the absence of specific figures on youth migration flows, to create mechanisms for the research, monitoring and evaluation of such mobility that can be transferred to EURES.

Improving qualifications: Members invite the Commission and the Member States to implement transparency and harmonisation in the recognition of qualifications within the Union, in particular through the European Credit System for Vocational Education and Training, Europass and the European Qualifications Framework. They stress that the problem of brain waste needs to be addressed, since having highly qualified and skilled young people working far below their potential results in non-use of their actual skills and qualifications, while at the same time having negative effects on them in social and psychological terms. Member States are urged to ensure that basic training in job-seeking skills is incorporated into university courses.

Combating womens unemployment: Members recall that unemployment among young women (under 25) is continuing to rise. It has increased from 18.8 % in 2009 to 22.1 % in 2012 and, according to the latest available data, now stands at 22.9 %. They point out that attitudes such as discouragement, self-exclusion and disaffection with work are becoming increasingly widespread and that young women still face worse labour market conditions than young men.

In this context, Members call on the Member States to pursue policies to encourage the presence of women in sectors and careers where they are under-represented, such as the field of science and technology and to combat gender segregation, both in education and in the labour market. Likewise, measures are called for close the gaps with regard to entering the labour market, careers and pay. They take the view that helping women to return to the labour market requires multidimensional policy solutions incorporating lifelong learning and action to combat precarious work and promote work with rights and differentiated work organisation practices, at the womans request, so that women do not have to give up their careers or take career breaks.

Tackling youth unemployment: possible ways out

Parliament emphasises that national and EU policy measures to boost youth employment should be coherent and mutually reinforcing. It deplores the fact that the current crisis measures aimed at reducing public spending in the crisis countries have already had a direct negative impact on young people through cuts in education, employment creation and support services. It points out that young unemployed people come from a wide variety of groups and therefore have to be classified according to their needs and abilities if the measures taken are to be implemented to more useful effect.

In this context, Parliament invites the Commission and the Member States to take measures to:

- where there is more than 25% youth unemployment in the regions, develop a one-year relief plan to tackle youth unemployment by creating jobs for at least 10 % of the young people affected;
- avoid wasting available resources by checking the possibility of applying examples of best practices from other Member States to their own labour markets;
- provide active support to Member States that agree to reform their vocational training systems;
- draw up qualitative guidelines for a modern dual education system, backed up by a list of broadly defined, non-academic key occupations in Europe;
- ensure the involvement of student and youth organisations in the reforms under way;
- prioritise the areas of science, technology, engineering and mathematics in their educational programmes;
- encourage and support the participation of young people and especially women, through education, civil society and quality youth initiatives, in democratic life.

Avoidance of budget cuts and significant investment in measures in favour of young people: Parliament is deeply concerned at the budget cuts in the Member States in the area of education, training and youth policy, which could result in young people being locked out of both education and employment. It invites the Member States and regional and local authorities to set up integrated territorial development strategies, including training and employment components, starting with measures to avoid early school leaving.

Parliament highlights the role of the proposed EU Loan Guarantee Facility for full-time Master's students in the EU and third countries in further facilitating youth mobility and contributing to multidimensional university ranking.

Recognising the particularly difficult situation in certain regions where the level of unemployment among young people is above 25 %, Parliament welcomes the fact that EU support for youth employment will be further boosted through the proposed EU Youth Employment Initiative, with a maximum budget of EUR 8 billion over the seven-year period 2014-2020. At the same time, it stresses that, according to the ILO, EUR 21 billion would be needed to implement the Youth Guarantee effectively in the eurozone alone. The specific budget allocation for this employment initiative for young people and the corresponding allocation from the European Social Fund (ESF) should therefore be frontloaded.

Youth Guarantee: while welcoming the decision of the EPSCO Council on 28 February 2013 to agree on a Council recommendation on implementing a Youth Guarantee, Parliament invites the Member States to take action to implement Youth Guarantee schemes in an ambitious manner at national level. It calls for the extension of the target groups to include young people under the age of 30, including graduates and those leaving training systems without qualifications.

Parliament informs the Member States that it intends to monitor closely all Member State activities to make the Youth Guarantee a reality. It also stresses that efforts and funding aimed at implementing Youth Guarantee schemes should not discourage the structural efforts and reforms that are required to make the education systems and labour markets in some Member States fit for the future.

Parliament calls on the Commission to provide in all its programmes for measures aimed specifically at tackling youth unemployment, following an integrated global approach.

As specifically regards the provisions to be set in place in regard to the Youth Guarantee, Parliament proposes a series of measures designed to bring about tangible and effective results.

Youth NEET Not in Education, Employment or Training): Parliament calls on the Member States to present, in the framework of the European Semester, proposals as to how they will make progress in better integrating NEETs via the Youth Guarantee and other instruments. It stresses the need to increase the employability and participation of young people by boosting lifelong learning and making social security schemes both more inclusive and activating. It calls for the removal of the practical and logistical barriers faced by young people having more complex needs or with disabilities when entering the labour market.

It also urges the Member States to draw up a strategy to provide incentives including financial incentives for pupils from vulnerable groups to complete their secondary education.

Plan of action on youth employment: Parliament calls on the Commission and Member States, in cooperation with youth stakeholders and with Parliament, to develop a plan of action on youth employment identifying short-term, medium-term and long-term measures. It recommends that, in Member States with a dual vocational training system, there should be an alternative apprenticeship scheme, and thus a Youth Guarantee scheme, in the form of vocational training with more than one employer for young people under the age of 18 who cannot obtain an apprenticeship.

Partnerships between businesses and the educational sector and traineeships: Parliament calls on the Member States to improve cooperation and strengthen partnerships between businesses and the educational sector at all levels, with the aim of linking curricula more closely to the demands of the labour market. It invites the Commission and the Member States to propose a Quality Framework for Traineeships, making sure that traineeships are tailored to the needs of young people to develop relevant skills. Parliament stresses the need to encourage all undertakings of a certain size to offer traineeships under a dual training scheme unless they are in major financial difficulty, and to recruit trainees at the end of their traineeships.

It also calls on the Member States to pay particular attention to high youth unemployment rates among young migrants.

Preventing early school-leaving and discrimination in schools: Parliament calls on the Member States to intensify their efforts to reduce early school leaving in order to achieve the goal set out in the EU 2020 strategy of a dropout rate no higher than 10 % by 2012. It invites the Member States to make use of a wide range of measures to fight early school leaving and illiteracy, e.g. reducing class sizes, providing assistance for pupils who cannot afford to complete their compulsory education, etc.

Parliament also calls on the Member States to implement the measures set out in their national Youth Guarantee Schemes, taking into account a gender perspective at all stages of the preparation, programming and implementation of these measures. It invites the Commission and the Member States to take such measures as are necessary to counteract the stereotype that entrepreneurship is a risky and male-dominated activity.

European Youth Corps: Parliament calls on the Commission to put forward a proposal for a European Youth Corps programme, with the aim of enabling young people under the age of 30 across Europe to do voluntary work in another Member State than their own for up to three months. The objective would be to give young people the chance to use and upgrade their educational and social skills, increase their knowledge of another Member State, and promote friendship and integration across the EU.

Align measures financed under the Structural Funds with the fight against unemployment: Parliament calls on the Commission and the Member States, when making decisions relating to the 2014-2020 programming period, to lay down more stringent and quantifiable criteria concerning the setting, monitoring and evaluation of Structural Fund objectives, with specific targets relating to the fight against youth unemployment, which should also be measurable in terms of gender (in the period 2007-2011, 52 % of European Structural Fund beneficiaries were women). It also calls for consideration to be given to a further adaptation of the ESF in order to provide additional support in the areas of young womens training, access to employment and childcare. It calls on the Member States to make full and coordinated use of the available EU funding (ERDF, ESF, CF, EAFRD and EMFF), thus enabling young people to play an active part in the economy and society.

EURES: Parliament stresses the need to introduce reforms to EURES with the aim of proactively matching jobseekers and job-changers to existing vacancies. It calls on the Member States, in the absence of specific figures on youth migration flows, to create mechanisms for the research, monitoring and evaluation of such mobility that can be transferred to EURES.

Improving qualifications: Parliament invites the Commission and the Member States to implement transparency and harmonisation in the recognition of qualifications within the Union, in particular through the European Credit System for Vocational Education and Training, Europass and the European Qualifications Framework. It stresses that the problem of brain waste needs to be addressed, since having highly qualified and skilled young people working far below their potential results in non-use of their actual skills and qualifications, while at the same time having negative effects on them in social and psychological terms. It calls on the Member States, at the same time, to take all necessary action to prevent the phenomenon of brain drain through sustainable measures which ensure employment opportunities for highly-skilled workers in their own Member State or region.

Member States are also urged to ensure that basic training in job-seeking skills is incorporated into university courses.

Combating womens unemployment: Parliament recalls that unemployment among young women (under 25) is continuing to rise. It has increased from 18.8 % in 2009 to 22.1 % in 2012 and, according to the latest available data, now stands at 22.9 %. It points out that attitudes such as discouragement, self-exclusion and disaffection with work are becoming increasingly widespread and that young women still face worse labour market conditions than young men.

In this context, Parliament calls on the Member States to pursue policies to encourage the presence of women in sectors and careers where they are under-represented, such as the field of science and technology and to combat gender segregation, both in education and in the labour market. Likewise, measures are called for close the gaps with regard to entering the labour market, careers and pay. It takes the view that helping women to return to the labour market requires multidimensional policy solutions incorporating lifelong learning and action to combat precarious work and promote work with rights and differentiated work organisation practices, at the womans request, so that women do not have to give up their careers or take career breaks.

Lastly, Parliament calls for measures to encourage green jobs for young people.

It should be noted that two alternative motions for resolution that were tabled by the GUE/NGL and Greens/EFA groups respectively were rejected in plenary.